

Atlas of Languages of Intercultural Communication in the Pacific, Asia, and the Americas: Vol I: Maps. Vol II: Texts (Linguistic Models)

Much of the contents of this atlas is based on recent research results concerning intercultural communication and contact language situations in a very large part of the world. Many of the findings have an impact upon existing views, especially regarding the origin of Pacific Pidgin English as well as intercommunication in the indigenous Arctic and American Indian worlds, many parts of Asia including insular Southeast Asia and the Pacific proper. Several virtually unknown hybrid languages in China are dealt with and their origins discussed. Further, the functions and roads of metropolitan languages and the Pidgins based on them are investigated. This publication should be of interest to linguists, ethno-sociologists, anthropologists, historians and political scientists.
