

Let the Kids Cook!: Inspired by Kids for Kids

Let the Kids Cook - A Kids Cookbook Inspired by Kids for Kids With over 60 Recipes, Bonus Activities, and Metric Conversion Charts, the kids will be busy having fun and tasting great and healthy food. The kids will have a fun time cooking for themselves or for the family. This cookbook was inspired by kids for kids and is intended to allow them to have a little independence in the kitchen; some recipes will require a little assistance. Hey Kids: This cookbook was inspired by Lars and Anya Wagoner, two fun-loving American kids living in Spain with their parents. Since living in Spain they have been able to try new foods, but sometimes they miss their favorites from the USA. It isn't easy to find many of the American treats in Spain, so they learned how to just make it on their own. They decided they wanted to share some of their favorites, so you can cook too! Lars and Anya selected recipes they thought you could make yourself, but there are some that will require you to ask for an adult assistant. If you want to make something just for you, several recipes are written for a single serving. Have fun and tell your parents to Let the Kids Cook! About the Author and Illustrator Heidi and her husband Alan are both authors of the popular travel blog, Wagoners Abroad. Having lived internationally and traveled to over 35 countries, plus working over 20 years in the corporate world, they decided to make their own dreams come true. In August of 2012, they sold most of their possessions, bought 4 one way tickets and settled with their 2 kids (Lars and Anya) in Southern Spain. With Spain as their home base, they are able to explore more of Europe and continue their passion for travel. The entire Wagoner Family loves to cook and the kids wanted to share some of their favorites with you.
