

WORLD PEACE: Humanity A Religion (Humanity - A Religion for World Peace Book 7)

The Soul is the beginning of all religions. It is the soul that connects an individual to the Almighty God. All religions, Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, Christianity, Islam and Judaism connect us with the Omnipotent and Omniscient God. Religion induces an individual to remain in peace and leave all glories, sufferings, sacrifices to god. Religion shows us the way to achieve perfection and purity in life. Religion teaches us love among human brotherhood, love among different faiths and the path of living in happiness. Religion teaches us to humanity, peace and the purpose of life. Man is social by birth and lives in a society. He is rich in culture, language, art, music, literature, science and technology. He makes a government and takes part in politics. He wages war for both offensive and defensive purposes. He is involved in trade and economics. But his inner heart searches for God realization; he is aware of spirituality and morality; and is dragged into faith and religion with or without his willingness. Spirituality, belief or involvement in matters of the soul or spirit, is one of the many different approaches humans have taken in trying to answer fundamental questions about mankind's place in the universe, the meaning of life, and the ideal way to live one's life. Though these topics have also been addressed by philosophers and to some extent by scientists, spirituality is unique in that it focuses on mystical or supernatural concepts such as karma (duty) and God. A more organized, but related, concept is religion, sometimes used interchangeably with faith which is commonly defined as a belief system concerning the supernatural, sacred or divine, and the moral codes, practices, values, institutions and rituals associated with such belief. In the course of its development, religion has taken on many forms that vary by culture and individual perspective. The largest religious gathering of humans in history, around 70 million people from around the world participated in Kumbha Mela at the Hindu holy city of Prayag (Allahbad), India. No organization could have arranged so many people through money and power, but it was possible because of attachment to religion and faith. Religion connects an individual to the Almighty; even many people come to attend these holy functions to sacrifice their lives voluntarily in quest for fulfilling Gods desire.
